Yet right up until the minute she decided she needed a change, until she threw. Talking to Jay had brought to the surface a lot of things that Colman usually preferred not to think about. Life was like the Army: It took people and broke them into little pieces, and then put the pieces back together again the way it wanted. Except it did it with their minds. It took kids' minds while they were plastic and paralyzed them by telling them they were stupid, confused them with people who were supposed to know everything better than they did but wouldn't tell them anything, and terrified them with a God who loved everybody. Then it drilled them and trained them until the only things that made sense were those it told them to think. The system had turned Anita into a doll, and it was trying to turn Jay into a puppet just as it had turned Bernard into a puppet. It turned people into recording machines that words went into and came out of again . and made them think they knew everything about a planet full of people they'd never seen, just as it blew black guys' brains out because they wanted to run their farms and didn't want their kids nailed to walls, and then told the civilians in Cape Town it was okay. And what had it done to Colman? He didn't know because he didn't know how else it might have been. jewel-sharp, jewel-dark colors, like a pirate's treasure of sapphires spilled among emeralds, scattered. of smoldering summer-evening light, behind the smoky reflections of the layered kitchen shadows. Driscoll grinned and began feeling more confident. '~You see, Wellington," he said. "They're not all as bad as you think." they are here on Earth or cruising distant avenues of the universe. "Lock at condition orange and ready to close." As a matter of emotional survival, she had recently been making an effort to keep her anger sheathed. important to the definition of who she was than medical science yet realized. What if she purged herself of. braced herself with the same lie once more. This wasn't really vodka for Micky. This was anger for. She whips around ? no older than she is yellow ? and trots away, not at a full run, but at a pace that. and then answered to her name, although usually she appeared not to know who she was ? or to care. To her surprise, sitting across the dinette table from Geneva, Micky began to weep. No racking sobs. Hanlon licked his lips while he tried to compress his hundred-and-one objections into a few words. "Ah, to be sure, but how could anything get done at all with an arrangement like that? Now, what's to stop some fella from deciding he's not going to do anything at all except lie around in the sun?"
